We will be announcing information on locations and times for each country next week. These times will be available on the country specific confirmation page you'll receive when you RSVP as well as the Thirty Seconds to Mars website.

As promised, if you are unable to attend The Global Summit we will be running The Digital Summit, which will allow you to participate in the making of the album from your home. We encourage you to organize your own Summit event with your friends and will be sending out details and instructions for this later this week.
